Obituary.
GEN. JAMES HAMILTON, OF SOUTH CAROLINA. We received yesterday, by telegraph from New Or leans, an account of the death of Gen. HAMILTON, which occurred on the night of the 15th, when the steamboat usas, from Berwick Bay to Galveston, by which Gen. Hamilton was a passenger, came in collision with the Galveston, of the same line, and from twenty to twenty five persons were drowned, among whom was

The subject of this sketch was one of the best known public men in the United States, and was perhaps, as fine a specimen of the old school Southern gentleman as about sixty-five years of age. He was a man of command fing figure, dignified manners, high attainments, and great personal popularity. He was a prominent candidate for the chair in the United States Senate left vacant by the death of Mr. Butler, of South Carolina, and was upon a visit to Texas for business purposes. General Hamilton came from good old Revolutionary stock. His father, was a member of the first Con-tinental Congress, and wrote the address to the British Heuse of Commons protesting against the Stamp Act. His uncle, Thomas Lynch, Jr., was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. His father, Majo Hamilton, served in the line of the Revolutionary arm from the occupation of Dorchester Heights by General Washington to the last gun fired during the war at Com bahee Ferry. The son of this brave officer received a liberal education, and in 1811 was admitted to prac-1812 broke out, however, he followed his father's example, and took up arms. We here find him a lieutenant in the 18th Regiment of the line. Six months afterwards he obtained his company. Ascertaining, however, that there would probably be no opportunity for active service in this regiment, which was ordered to do garrison duty at Charleston, he resigned his commission, and proceeded to the quarters of the army-in-chief at Lake Champlain, where he offored himself as a volunteer, and was appointed by the general commanding (Izard) on his staff. At the end of this campaign Capt. Hamilton was promoted to be Major, ordered to join Jackson's division at New Orleans While on the way South news was received of the victory of New Orleans, and soon after, the Treaty of Ghent having been ratified, Major Hamilton returned to the Charleston bar, and commenced the practice of the law with the late. Judge Huger. He was soon afterwards elected Mayor of Charleston, which office he filled during several years. He particularly distinguished himself at the time of the negro insurrection of 1822, nipping a dangerous plot in its eption, and sparing no exertions in bringing the guilty to execution. General Hamilton was soon after elected t the State Legislature, where he soon made his mark. At this time (1825) his friend and patron, William Lowndes, who had long represented South Carolina in the federal Congrese, died, and General Hamilton, though not a resident of Mr. Lowndes' district, was elected to the vacant neat. He remained in Congress until the year 1829. It was during this time that John Randolph fought his memorable duel with Henry Clay, the former being challenged by the latter for words spoken during debate. General Hamilton and Mr. Randolph had been friends from childhood. On the night before the duel Randolph sent for Hamilton and told him that he (Randolph) had determined to receive, without returning, Mr. Clay's fire. In case Mr. Randolph fell he left to his friends, Hamilton, Tatosil and Benton, pieces of gold which they were to wear as watch seats in remembrance of him. Hamilton says, in an affecting account of the duel, of which he was an eye witness, that the friendship between Randolph and himself was posthumous, having been bequeathed by their mothers. the State Legislature, where he soon made his mark. At doiph and himself was postnumous, having been bequeathed by their mothers.

In Congress, General Hamilton was an unceasing advocate of free trade and Southern rights, as they were viewed by the uitra party, of which he was one of the loaders. In 1824 he delivered a great speech on the tartiff, in which he prophesied the resistance of South Carolina. At this time the Alams and Jackson war was commencing, and Hamilton led the opposition to Adams, being convinced that his overthrow and the election of Jackson would do away with the lugh tariff and internal improvement systems which were the vital principles of Mr. Adams' supporters.

In spite of all opposition, however, in 1828 the high tariff system was adopted, when General Hamilton announced that he intended to resign his seat in Congress and defend State rights at home. He advocated the doctrine of armed resistance to the new tariff law in the nummer of 1828. In the winter of the next year he returned to Washington. He was pressed by General Jackson not to resign, but to accept the post of parliamentary leader for the administration. He declined this, and also an offer of the mission to Mexico, with a carie blanche to undertake the purchase of Texas—a measure which he sincerely advocated. He returned home, was elected Governor, and recommended the Legislature to pass the celebrated nullification act which placed the State in collision with the general government. The act was passed, and in accordance with the Governor's recommendation the State was placed in a condition for defence. By his successor, Gov. Hayne, Gen. Hamilton was ordered to the command of the treops so raised—the had more faith in bayonets than in judical processes. Whether right or wrong upon the merits of the case, the coolness, courage and perseverance of Gen. Hamilton at this crists must inspire the highest admiration. In this contest Gen. Hamilton hearty roined himself, financially, but carried his point—the differences between the State and the general government being settled in a manne

Gen. Hamilton took a warm interest in the early strug gles of the infant republic of Texas, and gave to it mate-rial aid. It was in furtherance of his favorite idea to ex-tend Southern territory, as well as the sympathy of a gal tant soldier for the brave men who contended agains such odds. In 1841 he went to England and France as the such odds. In 1841 he went to England and France as the representative of the Texan government, and was instrumental in the negotiations which resulted in the admission of that State to the Union. His residence was in Beaufort district, South Carolina, but he has had business interests in Texas which have often obliged him to visit that State. It was on one of these visits that he met his death. Few men will be more widely mourned than General Hamilton. Those who did not agree with him politically were forced to admire his ability, firmness and courage, which were mingled and tempered with that bonhouses which always characterizes a true gentleman. Statesman, soldier, patriot and gallant gentleman—eminently deserving his notifiest, "the Bayard of the South"—he has fought the good fight. Let us hope he has won the crown.

THE PHILOSOPHERS OF IRVING PLACE IMITATIN
THE PHILOSOPHERS OF TOMPKINS SQUARE. The Opera at the Academy of Mane, which has never seen particularly profitable, is just now in a ban way. Recently only a few of the performances have baid ex penses, and on several there has been a dea. I loss of five or six hun red dollars per night. Last my ht, for example, "Rigoletto " was admirably done at an a xpense of twelve hundred dollars, to an audience which paid only six hundred.

pelled to follow the example of the other theatres, and at tempt to reduce their expenses. A proposition was accordingly made to the artists having the larger salaries to submit to a reduction of one-third to those having small salaries, with the chorus and orchestra a reduction of one-fourth was proposed. The a ternative of a refusal of these propositions was the closing of the house, to take place this week.

These propositions created a considerable panic among the philosophers of the Academy. In the entr' actes of the opera last night there were heated discussions in numerous anguages, and large numbers of incendiary speeches à le Tempkins square. The "gentlemen of the chorus" re fused outright, and they will probably go to work at the Central Park, if they can get any. The orchestra at firs refused, but finally concluded to think about it until to day. The managers offered, in case they agreed to a re day. The managers offered, in case they agreed to a reduction, to give extra performances enough to make up nearly the amount of their regular salaries.

The artists have not yet been heard from, with the exception of Mme. de la Grange, who, like a sensible person, saw the state of things and offered a reduction with out being asked. Mme. D'Angri likewise evinced the same spirit. The reduction, although not much for each person, will make a saving to the management of $4,000 per month; and if it is made, they agree to go on paying every one promptly, as they have heretofore dons. In fact, they agree to give the artists the use of the theatre, dresses, music, etc., tic., without taking anything for themselves.

It is in this manner that the Opera is assently.

dresses, music, etc., etc., without taking anything for themselves.

It is in this manner that the Opera is usually conducted. The artists get all, the managers nothing. If the employees of the Academy have any common sense, (a rare thing in their calling.) they will be very glad to get anything during the winter which is approaching.

The instrumentalists depend a great deal upon their engagements at the grand halls given after the holidays. They will find, however, that very few of these entertainments will be given this season. It is a plain proposition, that if this season closes they will have nothing to do, and perhaps it would be wiser for the managers to close the house for a time. Many less scrupulous persons would do se, and open after a time with a differently constituted company. All things considered, the proposition of the managers is better than could be expected under the circumstances, and the musical philosophers would do well to accept it before it is withdrawn.

The maine announced for to-day—the "Trovatore" will be given; also the regular opera of Friday; but beyond that nothing is settled.

THEATRICALS, &c. -The following embraces the principal attractions at the various places of amusement this evening:-Mr. Mathews is to perform in the "Game of Specu lation" and "Trying it On" at the Broadway. At Niblo's we are to have M'lle Rolla in the ballet of "La Sylphide," M'lle Zanfretta in her astonishing tight rope feats, and th Ravels in the elegant pantomime of "Boreas." Mr. Eddy will appear in the "Mysteries of Paris," and Miss St. Clair in "Lucretia Borgia" and "Oliver Twist" at the Bowery Manager Burton tenders his famous comicalities of the "Serious Family" and the "Toodles," and the farce of the "Actress of all Work," in which Miss Quinn is to enact the heroine. Wallack's will doubtless be well filled by another critical audience to witness the new comedy of the "Maiden Wife" and drama called the "Invisible Husband." The great spectacle entitled the "Sea of Le" continues the only though very profitable feature at Laura Keene's. The Nagle Juveniles, at 444 Broadway, are to play "Ben Bolt" and "Charcoal Sketches," sing, dance, &c. The frequenters of the Museum are to be entertained with a couple of lively farces in the afternoon and the drama called the "Road of Life" in the evening. The programmes for the "colored opera" are as lengthy and varied as usual, and close with the farce of "Peter Piper Pepper Podge" at Wood's Building, and the "Alabama Cotton-heads" at Mechanics' Hall. The paintings illustrative of the Kane Arctic expedition are still on exhibition at Empire Hall. Mr. Aptomas, the well-known harpist, gives a concert and lecture on the harp to night at the Conservatiore de la Harp, at No. 48 Weat Twenty-fourth street, near Fifth avenue. He will give a history of the harp from the earliest times. "Actress of all Work," in which Miss Quinn is to enac

MONEY MARKET.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 18-6 P. M. The stock market has not lost any of its activity, but a good deal of its buoyancy has departed. At the opening this morning prices were not so high as at the close yesterday, and as operations pro-gressed the market became weaker and left off considerably lower. The transactions were upon a very extensive scale. At the first board Tennessee 6's declined | per cent; Virginia 6's, 4; New York Central 6's, 4; New York Central 7's, a; Harlem 1st mortgage, 1; Illinois Central Mississippi State 6's advanced 3 per cent; Canton Company, 4; Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati, 12. Notwithstanding the fall in prices, the sales sum up as heavy as any day during the present excitement. There were more time speculations this morning than we have noticed for sometime, but they are principally buyer's option. The general decline in the market this morning can be attributed almost entirely to the rapid rise of the past few days. It is a natural reaction after such a period of inflation, but we must look for a rapid recovery under the influences now at work in the market. The facilities new afforded for speculation and inflation have not been exceeded for years, and it looks very much just now as though the whole power of the banks of this city would be brought to bear in favor of the stock market. The foreign advices received to-day in Halifax may have had a momentary influence in depressing prices, but it so far has been trifling. The local influences at work are too powerful, and must have full swing for a time longer. The great abundance of money, the speculative disposition abroad, the reduced rate of interest ruling on call loans, all point to a further inflation. The character of the securities operated in is for the present a secondary consideration. The tendency of the market is upward, notwithstanding the occasional checks. These are the facts of to-day. The future-which is to-morrow or next week-when it comes will take care of itself. The banks are now free and liberal lenders on stock securities, for the best reason in the world-they have no other use for their money, and we do not see that they are likely to have so long as commercial paper continues from Liverpool we have three days later news from all parts of Europe. The intelligence is important but of an unfavorable character financially and commercially. The advance in the rate of interest of the Bank of England to nine per cent is not an nnexpected movement, but one not calculated to help matters much on this side of the Atlantic. The London money market was exceedingly active and the pressure very great. Apprehensions of a further increase in the rate of interest were partially the cause, and these fears were not without some foun-dation. Several very large failures in London, Liv-erpool and the manufacturing districts are reported, involving liabilities to a heavy amount. The decline in consols is about the strongest indication of the pressure and the panic. The condition of the markets for our staple exporting products is not at all satisfactory or encouraging. Quotations for cotton show a decline of much importance, and the market closed very dull. Breadstuffs were quiet, with a downward tendency in prices. The Niagara has on board about $500,000 in specie. The advices on the whole are bad, and we must look for worse by every steamer for many weeks to come. The lessee of the Watertown division of the La Crosse and Milwaukie Railroad Company gives notice that he will pay the interest coupons on the first, second and third mortgage bonds. The mortgages, we believe, amount to $628,000. The Philadelphia Ledger of yesterday, in alluding to the new financial arrangement of the Reading

By the arrival of the steamship Niagara at Halifax

Railroad, says:—
In the crisis that overtook every description of business a few weeks ago, the Reading Railroad Company, as well as almost all the other large railroad companies in the country, was caught with a heavy floating debt, which, in the peculiar condition of the money market, it was found quite inconvenient, if not impossible, to carry. This, with the unusual prostration of the coal trade, forced the company to the unpleasant dilemma of permitting its paper to go to protest. Since which, it is understood, the officers of the company have been busy in making provision for its 1860 bonds, including the company's floating debt. A mortgage of seven millions of dollars has been executed for this purpose.

mortgage of seven millions of dollars has been executed for this purpose.

We have not the details of the arrangement, but understand generally that the company will probably be relieved from any further difficulty in relation to its floating liabilities. The position enjoyed by the company under the act extending the 1850 loans, it is said, will probably make the creditors tractable. We have no doubt it is the purpose of the company that every creditor shall have his full claim, but it is resulted for the interest of both the company and creditors that the road shall be continued in operation under company management, that all must rejoice that it is likely to escape from its pecuniary difficulties.

The Philadelphia Rulletin anys:

It is stated that the net earnings of the road this year after paying all expenses and the interest on the indeb-edness of every kind, will be not less than $200,00 which may be made applicable to the payment of a div-dend or a part of the floating debt

At the second board the market was comparatively quiet. Most of the transactions this afternoon were for cash, and the reaction reported must have brought in new buyers, for it was not of long duration. At the board lower prices ruled. Illinois Central bonds fell off ½ per cent; Cumberland Coal, 1½ Missouri 6's, 1; New York Central, 1; Erie, ½; Reading, ½; Michigan Southern, old, ½; Panama, 1; Cleveland and Pittsburg, ½; Cleveland and Toeledo, 1½; La Crosse and Milwaukie, 3½. After the board the market recovered entirely the decline of the morning, and closed very firm. New York Central closed at 80 per cent bid; Reading, 45; Toeledo, 42, and so on through the list. Quite an active business was transacted after the board, and the advance.

There was a meeting this afternoon of the Clearing House Association, but nothing of importance was done. In fact there was no business of moment or consideration. Returns have been received from II but two country banks in the State, and they all xpress the greatest satisfaction regarding the lan proposed for the redemption of their issues, to the slightest difficulty is apprehended. The market opened this morning with an active demand, which was kept up during the whole day. The receipts, owing to the freshet in the Western rivers, were unusually light, and were it not for the large proportion of State cattle, which were sent in at short notice and many of which were not much more than half fatted, the supply would have been more shorter, and prices would have ruled at least one cent a pound higher than they did; besides which the supply would have become exhausted before 10 o'clock in the morning. The average quality of the offerings was very ordinary, and there was not more than two or three pairs of realty good beeves on sale. However, brokers had their own prices, and in some inatances obtained as high as He. a 1156. per 1b., for nothing but ordinary cattle, which would have sold last week at 9c. a 95c. The brokers report an advance of 5c. per 1b., but on close examination and inquiry, we found they were afraid of scaring off the butchers by telling the truth, which would, perhaps, have been the case. We quote an advance of from Ic to 13c. per 1b. on all descriptions. There was one drove of cattle, numbering 147 head, from Missouri, which were looking very fair, and which realized about 10c. a 11c. The Erie Railroad brought only about 150 head, and there must be a large number on the route, which will robably come in before next week, at which time a very large supply may be looked for. At the other yards about the usual number were offered, and realized about 10c. a 11c. per 1b. higher rates. At Bergen Hill the sales reached only about 150 head, most of which were bought up on speculation. The number on sale to-day at Allerton's was 1.725, and for the week, 1,851 head; at all the yards. 2,181 head, showing a falling off in the receipts of about 1.000 head, quite a number of smail lots, numbering from 6 to 15 and 20 head came in during the day, in antici quotations.

SHERF AND LAMES.

The market was dull during the first of the week, but to day a renewed activity was apparent, and sales were effected at about last week's prices. The receipts have failen off about thirteen hundred.

failen off about thirteen hundred.

WINE.

The receipts have been considerably lighter, but in consequence of the very large receipts of last week prices have not altered materially. The demand for prime cora fed has been a little more active, and they have been selling at 5½c, a 6c., and 5c. a 5½c, for other descriptions. The receipts for the week were 3,453, and the number on sale was much larger, owing to the fact that so many were left over last week.

The total receipts of all stock at all the yards for seek were as follows:— Cover and Veal Sheep and Calves. Calves. Lambs. 36 346 1,720 11 D 4,649 59 120 4,025 64 56 — 10,394 11,506 401,617 The annexed is the report of live stock brought over this road destined for New York for the week ending
